P. R. for 99 years.

PORT SASKATCHEWAN RACE MEET.

The Fort Saskatchewan race meet yesterday was most successful. The weather was all that could be desired, clear and bright. The crowd was large and everything passed off most agreeably. The interest in the races was very keen. The results appear in another column. What Edmonton writers more directly interested in were the baseball and football games. Draws were made and Edmonton and Strathcona drew to play in the morning. Certain causes produced a considerable delay and it was agreed to play a seven innings game. Very ragged ball was played throughout, errors being numerous. Dr. Till was unable to pitch having a sprained arm. At the end of the seventh innings the score stood 11 to 11 and it was agreed to play off the tie. Another inning, apiece did not change the score, but in the next innings Strathcona scored the winning run. This decided the game in Strathcona's favor by a score of 12 to 11. In the afternoon a baseball match was played between Strathcona and Fort Saskatchewan. The exhibition of baseball was scarcely any better than in the morning's game. Strathcona had a good lead on the Fort but the home team got down to work and rolled up a score of 13 runs against Strathcona's 11 and had an innings to spare. Both Strathcona and the Fort will soon play return games here and it is up to our boys to redeem themselves.

In the evening a very interesting game of football was played between teams representing Edmonton and Fort Saskatchewan. The final score does not by any means represent the relative playing as the game was exceedingly well contested. The score stood 7 to 9 in favor of Edmonton, who played an excellent game throughout. The Edmonton boys are loud in their praise of the way they were used by the Fort team and are anxiously waiting to return the compliment when the Fort team visits Edmonton.

Calgary Strike Situation.

Berald.
There are ever indications that the beginning of the end of the strike is at hand. Through the suggestions of some penmenakers thoroughly interested in the welfare of Calgary, meetings of the unions and of the employers have been held, though separately.
Yesterday afternoon the contractors and employers held a meeting and went over the whole situation, and in the evening the Carpenters' union met and conducted over matters, formulating their ideas, and receiving through some intermediary the views of the contractors and employers.
This morning the employers met again and discussed what the union thought of the situation and formulated their opinions.

It seems the end is close at hand, and both sides rightly have come to the conclusion to agree on free labor or the employment of union or non-union men. Any other and more difficulties will no doubt be overcome and everyone be at work very shortly.

PERSONAL

Rev. Mr. Rickard, English church minister at Lacombe, is in Edmonton today.

Calgary Herald.—Miss Marsh left on Wednesday morning's train for Edmonton, where she will visit Mr. and Mrs. Justice Scott for a couple of weeks.

ENCOURAGING FLOWING MATCHES.

The department of agriculture at Regina is doing everything in its power to encourage flowing matches. Circulars suggesting rules to suit the natural conditions of the different districts are being distributed. It is suggested that in order to raise funds, application be made to district agricultural societies and also to merchants and implement dealers. The superintendent of Territorial Agricultural Societies, Regina, will be pleased to furnish any information along this line.

ENCOURAGING WORDS FROM NORTHERN ALBERTA.

A representative of the Northwest Farmer, writing from Edmonton under the above heading on May 30th, says:

"The farmers of this district have had ideal weather with the exception of a few days after the snow storm of two weeks ago. Crops are now all in the ground and the growth of early sown is very satisfactory, with still plenty of moisture in the ground for all late sown crops."

"Hogs are now being shipped out to British Columbia in car lots by C. A. Scott, of Vancouver, who is paying 5 1/2 cents straight weight. Freight from Alberta points to Vancouver is 58 cents per hundred and from Manitoba to Vancouver 87 cents. Farmers all along the C. & E. line, whom I have met are greatly interested in any of the experiments made in Manitoba with the different breeds of hogs and their crosses. One cross that seems to appeal to them very strongly here is that of the Berkshire hog on purebred Tamworth sows. The Tamworth sows are the best of mothers and are thought to be perhaps the most prolific of all the breeds, while the cross-breds sired by a Berkshire are as easily fed, and can make a pound of pork out of a given quantity of grain as readily as any. This is done with as little liability of throwing pigs off their feet as is the case where any other breeding is followed. The quality of the product is equal, if not superior, to any other bacon on the market."

How the North is Developing

Toronto News.

When Mr. Merriweather, the economist and writer on labor conditions, visited Western Canada, which he had discovered at the World's Fair, he went as far north as Edmonton, then the most northern railway point on the continent. He reported afterward that he was about to leave for the south with the idea that he was some-what of an Arctic traveller, a kind of "farther north" man, when a party of Hudson's Bay people arrived from Athabasca Landing, having come from the Mackenzie river valley. He asked one of them how much farther north than Edmonton was the post at which he was located, and was told about two thousand miles. After that Mr. Merriweather concluded he would keep quiet and say nothing about his northern experiences.

This is somewhat the feeling of everyone who looks into the matter of Canada's great northern territory for the first time. People who imagine that Edmonton is the northern verge of everything are surprised to find (travel organized, chiefly by means of steamers, from Athabasca Landing, ninety miles north of Edmonton, clear up to the mouth of the Mackenzie river in the Arctic circle. In the winter time travelling is done by dog train. In the far north mail is received twice a year.

It must not be supposed that steamers only go up and down the Mackenzie like they do on the St. Lawrence. The distances are too great and until the main stream of the Mackenzie is reached there are several portages caused by rapids so that a steamer may be confined to a very short stretch of river.

On the Mackenzie river proper there is only one Hudson's Bay Company steamer, the Wrigley, named after a former commissioner of the H. B. C., and it is the rule for those going north to leave Edmonton about May 24th and to reach the Wrigley about a fortnight later, when the summer processions follow the ice down the Mackenzie, discharging cargo at the various H. B. posts, and reaching Fort Macpherson on the Peel river, a tributary of the Mackenzie, near its mouth, in the late summer. On the return trip the steamer picks up the bales of furs at the various posts and gets to the southern end of her journey before freezing-up time. Of course with greater traffic the time would doubtless be considerably shortened.

The northern part of the Mackenzie river valley is occupied by Indians, who live by field and hunting, the Hudson's Bay company people and the missionaries. The richly fertile valley has been hitherto occupied by the "Church of England" and the Roman Catholic church, the former having had for a number of years three bishoprics in the Mackenzie river valley, and the Klondike. This spring the Presbyterian church sent in its first missionary to the Peace river country, which is the southern end of the Mackenzie valley.

This country differs from the lower or northern valley in that it is already the Mecca of ranchers and farmers. Rev. D. G. McQueen, of Edmonton, assistant superintendent of Presbyterian missions, who has been in Edmonton twelve years and who was largely instrumental in having the mission started, speaking of the district recently, said that the best part for agriculture was that bounded on the north by the Peace River, on the east by the Smoky River, and on the west by the Rocky Mountains. This region was approximately 200 miles a side. It possessed a climate milder than Edmonton, which was itself much warmer than Manitoba. This was due to the fact that the Rockies were much lower in that part, which left the region open to the warm Pacific winds. Not only was this a region well adapted to stock raising, but it had produced wheat which had taken the first prize at the Chicago World's Fair. A mill was in operation at Dunsagan, which produced the finest sample of flour from Peace River wheat. The country was wooded in places, but free from scrub and the open woods of tall trees were park-like and beautiful. The district was well watered by clear streams, and the Hudson's Bay complete chain of waterways through it. Settlers were already going into this district and with the advent of railways it would be rapidly filled.

Another report shows that there is another flour mill at Peace River crossing and a Hudson's Bay mill at Fort Vermilion, which together ground a considerable quantity of wheat last season.

These facts testify pretty thoroughly to the wheat-raising capabilities of the district and it is also reported that cattle and horses pasture out all winter without requiring hay and that delicate vegetables, including tomatoes, can be ripened in the open air.

Besides the agricultural and stock-raising industries and the fur trade, there is considerable lumbering and repeated searches are being made for petroleum, which, it is believed, will be found along the Athabasca River. There is also some mining. While there is no railway in sight for the lower stretches of the Mackenzie River, several projects are already put forward to tap the Peace River country, and if this were opened up, access to the farther north district by steamer would be much facilitated.

This is only one part of the north country, which is continually sending forth indications of what it is going to be in the years to come. The trader, then the rancher, and lastly, the settler, are continually penetrating into districts, which a few years ago were thought useless. Many people believe that sections of the north country will be found rich in minerals, but whether such districts are frequent or not the back country is bound to play an increasingly important part in the life of the Northwest from this time on.

It is the presence of these settlements, pressing into districts hundreds of miles away from the international boundary line, which indicates the change that has come over this country since the time when the C. P. R.'s thin line of steel was supposed to string together all there was of settlement and production in the Northwest. Where at that time all the traffic had to be developed on one main line, there are now a score of branch lines reaching out ever farther and farther, creating traffic both inward and outward and making a demand for transportation facilities east and west which, while so immense today, is bound to very largely increase in the near future.
